GENERAL NEWS.

Gen. Palmer Resigns the Presidency of the D. & R. G.

Heavy Storm Does Much Damage at Dodge City.

Further Passenger Rate Cuts Spain in a State of Siege.

Gen Palmer Resigns

NEW YORK, August 9.—The resignation of General W. J. Palmer of the presidency of the Denver & Rio Grande railway was tendered to the board of directors at their meeting to-day and accepted. Resolutions of regret at his retirement were unanimously carried.

A Terrible Storm.

DODGE CITY, Kas., August 9.—The most severe storm ever known in this section struck this city about midnight. It gathered in the northwest and struck the town with the force of a battering ram, the roar of the tornado being deafening and almost beyond belief. Owing to the permanent character of our buildings the damage was confined to the destruction of roofs, chimneys, stables and outhouses and the moving of buildings from their foundations. The storm was accompanied by the grandest display of lightning ever witnessed by the oldest settler, it being one continuous sheet of angry flame. The school building, a fine two-story brick structure, was struck, also the large stone dwelling of John Muller. The entire losses will probably foot up $10,000, divided into 200 or more losses. The rain accompanying the storm was very heavy, water standing over a foot deep on the front street. The wind gauge at the signal office was blown down when the storm struck, but good judges estimate the wind's velocity at ninety miles.

The Spanish Situation

PARIS, August 9. A prominent Spanish republican states that the situation in Spain is very grave. He asserts that several superior officers of the army are in favor of a republic, that an outbreak in the republican interest is imminent in the principal towns and Carlos is preparing to act in the north.

MADRID, August 9.—The council of the ministry to-day lasted the whole afternoon and it was decided to proclaim a state of siege throughout Spain. Furloughs of all officers in the government military service are cancelled.

The Public Domain.

WASHINGTON, August 9.—An official statement furnished by the commissioner to the general land office, shows something of the marvelous rapidity with which the newer states and territories are becoming populated, and the enormous drafts which are being made upon the public domain in order to satisfy the requirements of actual settlers. It also indicates that the public lands remaining in the southern states, which had been so long neglected, are rapidly coming under settlement.

The statement includes the more important transfers of public lands in ten states and territories—Dakota, Florida, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Oregon, Washington Territory and Wisconsin.

As compared with the year ended June 30, 1882, the statement shows an increase of 35,217 in the number of entries, cash sales, original homestead entries and timber culture entries, of 3,505,643 in the number of acres entered.

The amount received from cash sales increased from $3,313,634 in 1882 to $7,564,429 in 1883, or more than 128 per cent. In 1882 the number of preemption and other filings, and of applications to purchase mineral, timber and stone lands, in the same states and territories, was 29,080, and the amount of fees received $64,856. In 1883 the number and amount were respectively 43,591 and $91,843. The amount of fees and commissions paid on account of original homestead entries in 1882 was $456,661, in 1883 it was $572,630.

Dakota takes the lead, both in the amount of lands taken by actual settlers and in the amount sold for cash in that territory; the number of homestead entries increased from 15,156 covering 3,208,698 acres, to 22,491, covering 3,267,227 acres.

The number of timber culture entries ran up from 9,808, covering 1,466,532 acres, to 11,560, covering 176,525 acres; and the cash sales increased from 673,788 acres at $977,342 to 518,091 acres at $3,109,387. Probably the history of no state or territory can furnish a parallel to these figures.

In Florida the cash sales increased from 128,872 acres at $158,037 to 221,853 acres at $341,654, and the number of original homestead entries from 101,083 acres to 212,805 acres. The public lands of Kansas have been pretty closely culled, and, although the cash sales increased—from 90,009 acres at $116,583 to 159,144 acres at $189,320, the homestead entries fell off from 517,349 acres to 508,781 acres, and the timber culture entries decreased from 273,053 acres to 237,860 acres.

In Louisiana the cash sales decreased from 367,468 acres, at $463,000, to 235,250 acres at $448,326, but the homestead entries run up from 873, covering 117,703 acres, to 935, covering 124,050 acres, and the timber culture entries increased from 1,004 acres to 7,754 acres.

In Minnesota there was a decided increase in cash sales from 318,465 acres at $482,469, to 739,345 acres at $1,324,976; but there was a falling off in original homestead entries from 586,341 acres to 431,872 acres, and in timber culture entries from 176,741 acres to 122,750 acres. The homestead settlers of this state are rapidly acquiring patents for their farms, after five years of settlement, as also is the case in Kansas.

In Minnesota they entered patents to 250,238 acres this year, against 245,086 last year.

In Kansas the amount for 1882 was 506,061 acres against 499,390 in 1882.

There were no entries in Mississippi under the timber culture act, but the cash sales increased from 219,455 acres at $274,320, to 349,502 acres at $440,102, and the original homestead entries from 139,488 acres to 167,079 acres.

Nebraska still has a large area of fertile public lands which are open to settlement. In that state the number of original homestead entries in 1882 was 3,223, covering 471,039 acres. In 1883 there were 4,728 entries, covering 716,500 acres. The cash sales increased from 112,575 acres, at $143,753, to 190,628 acres at $511,677, and the number of timber culture entries ran up from 2,086, covering 298,520 acres, to 3,216, covering 478,204 acres.

In Oregon the cash sales increased from 52,719 acres, at $88,560, to 59,666 acres at $123,503; but the homestead entries fell off from 153,532 acres to 111,478 acres, and the timber culture entries from 88,038 to 35,463 acres. In Washington Territory, however, there was a remarkable increase, not only in cash sales, but in homestead and timber culture entries.

The Markets.

NEW YORK, August 9.—Money easy 2 to 2½; prime paper 5½ to 6, sterling exchange steady 4 83½, demand 4.87½, governments strong; railways steady; states dull. Stocks were steadier to-day and aside from a continuance of the raid on Northern Pacific and Oregon Trans-Continental were stronger than yesterday. Apprehensions of the continuance of the panicky movement to sell stocks which had its origin in the telegraphers' strike and various other rumors of a disquieting nature have to some extent disappeared.

"Certainly," says the Evening Post, "if good crops, good railway earnings, and abundance of money seeking some kind of satisfactory investment are sufficient to restore confidence in the stock market there should be a better feeling. The chief obstacle, however, is that the public mind has been thoroughly disturbed.

The market closed steady, a number of stocks being at the highest prices of the day. Sales 251,000 shares.

Mining stocks dull. Standard Consolidated sold at 5 38 and 6.00, closing 6.25; Sierra Nevada sold 5.38 and 5.50; Union Consolidated, 6 25; Chrysolite, 1.10; Robinson Consolidated, 75 cents; Bodie Consolidated, 29; Sonora Consolidated, 26 and 28. Sales for the day, 33,510 shares.

Coming Army Changes

WASHINGTON, August 9.—"There is going to be a funny fight in army circles when General Sheridan comes to Washington," said a war department man. "General Schofield, who is now at the head of the department of the Pacific, and General Pope, who is at the head of the department of the Missouri under General Sheridan, will both try to stay where they are. Neither of them want to remove to Chicago. General Schofield is one of the biggest men socially on the Pacific slope, and General Pope is King Bee in Kansas and Missouri. Neither could cut a very wide swath in Chicago for a very long time, and neither care to go there for that reason. General Hancock is out of the fight apparently, nobody showing a disposition to disturb him. General Sheridan will not come here until the 1st of October, but the fight against removal to Chicago will begin several weeks before that date."

Entering upon another branch of the subject, the war department man said:

"The carpet knights who have been attached to General Sherman, and who have been stationed here for several years, are greatly disturbed by reason of the impending change. Several of them have been in Washington for years drawing colonels' pay when in fact they are captains, and they dislike very much to go back to their regiments. They are social stars here, and they draw $5,000 a year. They do not contemplate with equanimity a reduction to $1,800 and banishment to the frontier. There is no champagne in $1,800, and neither are there balls and other fashionable frivolities. General Sheridan will probably bring his staff from Chicago, and although it is probable that several of General Sherman's clerks will be taken care of there are several who will have to resume their proper rank and place in the field.

Military Reunion.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., August 9. The second day's attendance of the grand reunion was unexceptionally large and greatly exceeded the assemblings heretofore convened in southwestern Missouri. Fully ten thousand people gathered around the stand in the forenoon and listened to speeches by ex-Governor Phelps, General Blair of Fort Scott, Governor Berry and Senator Walker of Arkansas, General Pearce who commanded the Arkansas state troops at Wilson Creek twenty years ago, Captain Gulick of Burlington, and other distinguished gentlemen from abroad. The best possible feeling prevailed throughout. The speaking, marching, and public and private intercourse of all the veterans manifested a real union of hearts and hands. The city is brilliantly illuminated, bands are playing, and countless throngs promenading the streets. An era of good feeling is apparent everywhere, and arrangements are made for excursion trains tomorrow on the 'Frisco road to the vicinity of the battle ground, and an immense concourse of people will assemble to celebrate the twenty-second anniversary on the ground where it was fought. The splendid monument erected in the public square to the memory of General Lyon was unveiled this forenoon with appropriate ceremonies in the presence of countless thousands of visitors from this and other states.

Sale of a Railroad.

NEW YORK, August 9.—A Post special from Montreal says the Southeastern railroad was purchased to-day from Bradley Barlow by a syndicate composed of George D. Chapman, of the National Construction company of New Jersey, Ashley Hibbard and, Walter Shanley, of Montreal, and James Mitchell, of London, England, for $3,800,000 cash. This will leave Barlow a surplus of about $350,000 after paying off all his liabilities, including $1,400,000 to the Canadian Pacific road. This sale is considered a big euchre on the Canadian Pacific company, who supposed they controlled the Southeastern road, and will cut off their only connection with Boston and Atlantic ports. The purchasing syndicate are believed to represent Grand Trunk and Central Vermont interests, as Hibbard has been working against the Canadian Pacific all along.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., August 9.—Bradley Barlow has returned from New York but refuses to give any information concerning the reported sale of the Southeastern railroad. He says, however, that satisfactory arrangements are likely to be made soon. Considerable feeling exists against Brainard and directors of the Trust company for their seeming lack of knowledge of the company's affairs. One director acknowledges that he knew nothing about their business. The public feeling is that the funds have been handled in a careless manner to say the least.

A Woman's Argument

ASBURY PARK, N. J., August 9.—At the state convention of the national party of New Jersey to-day a platform was presented for adoption. The document—expressed opposition to all monopolies, favored control by the government of railways and telegraph lines, equal taxation, universal suffrage and submitting to a popular vote an amendment to the state constitution prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. A warm discussion followed on a clause favoring woman suffrage. Mrs Marie Howland, a delegate, arose to speak but began crying and sat down. The platform was finally adopted as read with the exception of the temperance plank. A resolution expressing sympathy with striking telegraph operators passed. Benjamin Urner, of Union county, was nominated for governor.

Iron Workers' Convention

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., August 9.—The afternoon session of the Iron Workers' convention was occupied largely by the reading of Secretary Martin's report of work and statistics of organization for the past year. The membership is placed at 49,000. The report of the treasurer, James Penny, on the finances of the association was also read. It showed heavy draws on funds for strike benefits and urged that officers of the national lodge be empowered to levy an assessment about September 1st. The association is now drawing largely on its surplus for current expenditures, and the prospect is that before the week is out at least $100,000 will be drawn from this fund. This makes it necessary to adopt some financial measures to meet the existing pressing demands. President Jarrett authorized the most stringent measures to keep information from the press. One of the first district delegates from the western end of Pennsylvania was suspended from the convention for divulging a portion of the proceedings to newspapers.

Salvation Army Defeat.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., August 9.—Several weeks ago the common council passed resolutions prohibiting the Salvation Army parading the streets. To-night the entire army determined to defy the board of aldermen and marched through the streets shouting hallelujah and singing hymns adapted to popular airs. The police arrested the whole body and escorted them to the station house where they were about to be placed in cells when an alderman who opposed the resolution signed the bail bond.

The Railroad War.

—ST LOUIS, August 9. No additional open cut is announced in the rates to Chicago, but it is said tickets can be obtained from scalpers for $5.75 via the Illinois Central road. Scalpers are also selling Louisville tickets at $4 50. The Ohio & Mississippi reduced the Cincinnati rate to $7, which was immediately met by the Vandalia. There is some talk of a likelihood of the Chicago rate going to $2, and a general war between Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City.

An Ungrounded Alarm.

LONDON, August 9.—Lord Carlingford, president of the council and minister of agriculture, gave an audience to a deputation asking for further restriction of importation of cattle. Lord Carlingford replied that the government was exerting its strictest vigilance to prevent the introduction of contagious disease among cattle, and there was not the slightest evidence of the recent introduction of such diseases from foreign countries.

Amateur Sculling.

NEWARK, N. J. August 9.—Consolation races of the national regatta, amateur, open, took place to-day. The junior single sculls race was won by R. H. Bryan; time 9.42½. Senior single sculls was won by John F. Buckley in 9.18½. The eight-oared shell race was won by the Unions of New York in 7.49. The Hillsdale four gave an exhibition race doing a mile and a half in 8 23½.

Vanderbilt's Men in the West.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 9.—The Devereux—party of railroad officials connected with Vanderbilt interests passed the day here. They drove about the city this morning and spent the afternoon at their hotel. They declined positively to talk with reporters about the nature of their business. The party left to-night for Omaha.

Guarding Informers

SYDNEY, N. S., August 9.—The steamship Pathan with Kavanagh, Joseph Hanlon and other informers in the Phœnix park murder cases, refused permission to land at Melbourne, have arrived here. The informers by orders of the home government have been transferred to the iron-clad Nebon.

TELEGRAPH TROUBLES.

Many Western Union Operators Return to Work.

Situation on the Railroads About the Same.

Conflicting Reports of the Call on the Texas Telegraphers.

Telegraphers' Strike.

CINCINNATI, O., August 9.—Superintendent Miller of the Western Union reports that three first-class striking operators notified him to-night that they would return to-morrow. This makes nine accessions here from the strikers.

SCRANTON, Pa., August 9.—A large force of telegraph builders have resumed work with the Western Union.

AUGUSTA, Ga., August 9.—The strike in the third district of the southern division of the Western Union Telegraph company system is practically ended. Operators are returning to work.

CHICAGO, August 9.—Western Union officials have advices that striking telegraphers have returned to work to-day as follows: Augusta, Ga, 5; Cincinnati, 3, Chicago, 2, St. Louis, 2, St. Paul, 1.

ST. LOUIS, August 9. Superintendent Baker, of the Western Union Telegraph company, reports to-night that rumors have been current in Texas to-day that railroad operators on all Gould lines in that state were ordered out to-day by the brotherhood. Officials also reported that seventy men had abandoned their keys under this order and that a very large number will go out to-morrow, but Mr. Baker has no official advices to this effect; on the contrary he has dispatches from his manager at Galveston and other places that only nine men have gone out on all divisions, and that the strike in Texas is so far at least insignificant and harmless.

PITTSBURG, August 9.—The Pan Handle Railroad operators are still at work. Superintendent Taylor has issued an order dismissing all who refused to send commercial business. He afterwards requested them to continue at work until further notice. A number of operators on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railroad have been discharged for refusing Western Union business and the balance threaten to strike if the company insist upon their doing it.

American Forestry

ST. PAUL, Minn., August 9.—At the American forestry congress this morning the committee on forest experimental stations reported commenting on the decrease of state forests for the want of trained forester committees, and urged on the respective states the necessity for forestry experimental stations, and that this congress memorialize the legislatures of the different states urging upon them the practicability of establishing those stations. The Ohio plan was recommended as the most suited to our circumstances. The report was adopted. The committee on memorializing the state legislatures upon the establishment of state forestry commissions reported a memorial calling attention to the importance of giving early attention to measures for the maintenance of forest supplies, and to the relations existing between the woodlands and the agricultural welfare of the country.

MINING MATTERS.

Notes Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

PROSPECTOR VS. CAPITALIST.

Cor. Gunnison Review-Press.

A close observer, traveling through any of the mining districts of this state, sees many things that lead him to question himself as to why such a state of things exist, and from circumstances look back to the causes which create them. One of the greatest drawbacks to the immediate and steady advancement toward permanent prosperity is a lack of confidence between the pioneer, prospector, or miner, and the holder of the capital so necessary to develop their interests and make available and permanently profitable the results of their months of labor. It is not at all surprising that this state of affairs should exist, from the hundreds of cases that we see where the miner or prospector has been "frozen out," as we term it, after months of hard work, of the interest they may have retained when selling their claims. On the other hand, how many thousands who have invested their earnings, with great hopes of immediate and wonderful results, have been grievously disappointed that their wild and unauthorized expectations are not fully realized. This, of course, has caused a great want of confidence between two elements of our people that are necessary to each other in the development of local interests—the capitalists, whose money we so much need, and ourselves, the working element—the miners, prospectors and claim-holders. A suitable and strong effort should be immediately made to bring about a better understanding between these conflicting interests. In order to start a train of thought in the minds of our local mining population, we will give the result of some of our observations. The miner has made and established his claim on a good pay streak, has found a true fissure that is bound beyond all doubt to pay for its working and development. Everybody knows from the geological formations that the mineral is right there in paying quantities; but there you sit at the end of your rope for the want of funds and hold your claims, do a little work, and even when some one is willing to join hands with you and furnish capital to continue the work—for, say, a half interest—you say no, you want no company business; you have seen enough of it. "Well, if you won't sell an interest, what will you take for your claim?" Your ideas go away up at once, and you either want an exorbitant price for a few hundred dollars, or perhaps less than even one hundred, of work, and the possibilities of either success or failure in the future, that your prospective buyer is driven, after a few such experiences, clear out of the state, entirely disgusted. Equally disappointed, you drag along until both yourself and claim are lost sight of. Look the whole state over, and you will find many such cases as this and thousands of mines which have been forgotten. Mining now has become a legitimate business, conducted upon scientific principles, based upon a thorough knowledge of the composition of the rock upon which you are working. As these facts become more clearly established in the minds of our people, and realized by our friends the capitalists, and every one ceases to rush headlong into schemes which, to a close, observing practical and experienced mind, must of their own weight fall to pieces, just as soon as we cease to try to beat our backers, and they cease to try to drive us to the wall and learn for once and all that we are just as necessary to them as they to us, that there are better and more reliable men right here in Colorado, where their hard experiences and life among the mountain influences make thinking, practical men clearer thinkers, and their experience show so plainly that dishonesty means complete and sure failure, than can be found in their own walks of life; that to be successful we must work together in perfect harmony with energy and perseverance; then will capitalists place their money where it will do us the work we need, and pay them many times more percentage than any investments they can make in their own country. It is only a question of a short time, and those who take hold now and try to help ahead with this work will realize and be farther ahead in the race than the many who sit down and wait for some one else to start.

THE ADLAIDE.

Leadville Herald.

The lessees of the Adlaide and Terrible mines, according to all reports, have struck the largest bonanza yet opened by lessees in this district. The mine now shows a breast of ore nearly 100 feet long and of exceptional strength. Conservative estimates place the resources at 5,000 tons, which will net at least $100,000. So far this month the mines have shipped at least $20,000 worth of ore. The shipments average thirty tons a day of ore having an average value of $45 per ton. Deducting royalty, smelting charges and cost of mining, the ore leaves the lessees about $20 per ton, and it is said that the average daily income is at least $500. The ore body was opened near the Adlaide No. 2 shaft. The lessees are Messrs. E. R. Holden, A. Chanute, Charles Taylor and L. P. Feustman.

PRODUCTION FOR 1882.

The mint authorities furnish the following statistics for 1882: Gold, $32,500,000; silver, $46,500,000; total, $79,300,000; or an increase of $1,600,000 over the output in 1881. For the first six months of 1883, the product is estimated at $10,250,000 gold, $23,400,000 silver, and $39,650,000 total; the rate of production being assumed to be the same as in 1882. In 1882, 132,890 net tons of lead were produced, worth, at an average value of $95 per net ton on the eastern seaboard, $12,624,550. For the first half of 1883, the production is estimated at 70,000 net tons, worth, at $90 per ton, $6,300,000. In this case, as with copper, it is impossible to state the average spot value of the lead, or the tons of lead ore mined. A very large proportion of the lead ore smelted is argentiferous, and is worked for its silver contents and not for the value of the lead. In the census year ended May 31st 1880, the amount of white lead corroded was reported at 123,447,890 pounds, worth $8,770,699.

WHEREAS, On account of failing health, the Rev. A. R. Kieffer, who has been our beloved rector for the last ten years, has tendered his resignation, to take effect on the 11th of August next, to accept the rectorship of Grace church, Colorado Springs, Colo, therefore be it

Resolved, That the vestry of Christ church, for themselves and the parish they represent, desire to express to him, and place on record, their profound sense of his true Christian charity, his ardent and constant zeal, and of his steadfast adherence to, and his great ability in making known to the world, the faith of the Protestant-Episcopal church and its order and worship.

Resolved, That it is a cause of general regret that he has found it necessary to sever his connection with our parish at this time, and by reason of failing health to seek a change of climate and scene; but the vivid recollection of his eminent ministerial fidelity and usefulness, and of a true and large liberality in works of benevolence, will never fail, and the personal attachment of those who have enjoyed his ministry and shared his confidence, will not be broken by this separation.

Resolved, That it is our most heartfelt wish, that wherever in the providence of God his lot may be cast, the residue of his life may be cheered by recollections of the past, and be gladdened by the confidence of a future and higher life, which he has so often and so nobly preached.

Resolved, That we hereby express our high regard for his family, and trust that in their future home they may add to the already large circle of sincere friends, who will never cease to remember them with kindest love and esteem.

Resolved, That those resolutions be recorded in the minutes of the vestry, a copy be furnished Rev. Kieffer, and the city papers be requested to publish them.

Long Dennis

A few of the guests at the Antlers recently laid out a tennis court. It is near the quarters of the pastry cook. The cook is named "Dennis." Mr. Barnes, the popular clerk of the Antlers, happened to pass near Dennis' quarters and was thus accosted:

"May I spake to you a moment, Mr. Barnes?"

"Certainly," said Mr Barnes, in his blandest manner.

"Well, do you see that place yonder? I want to protest against it. It was put there without my permission and the saloons have called it 'Long Dennis.' Don't you think it is an insult?"

Thurlow Weed was a terrible smoker. He estimates in the fifty four years he was addicted to the habit, that he used 80,000 cigars. It undoubtedly hurried his end. This should be a warning to young men, who wish a longer life than Mr Weed had. He was only 84 years old when he died

The Republic says it has not nailed to its mast a republican ticket for 1884 because if the convention failed to recognize the merits of the ticket it suggested, the Republic would feel "cheap." It seems to us such fears are groundless. The convention would be the one to feel "cheap."

One of the greatest myths in Christendom is "The Colorado Liar." Some "tenderfeet" think that such a being is in existence but the belief does not last after a short residence here. The wonderful stories which are supposed to be the product of exuberant fancy are soon found to be only common every day facts. Still the C. L. conception has some advantages. When anyone is "found out" in some story, it is a very simple explanation to say that the C. L. told him

Our dispatches state that General Palmer has resigned the presidency of the Denver & Rio Grande Railway company. His vast Mexican interests have required most of his time heretofore and it has long been rumored that he would devote himself exclusively to them. The resignation is probably the carrying out of this intention. It will therefore not involve any change in policy or management. Our advices are incomplete as the only news we have is through the associated press.

Some brash Denver editors suggest that the people of Denver pay the Grand Army deficit. This would be unprecedented and unnatural. The Denver people always divide. They unselfishly told the legislature last winter that they were willing to reap the benefits of the encampment, and the state should pay the bills, or that they would let the state pay the bills and Denver would reap the advantages of the encampment. It does not seem to us that such an equitable arrangement should be broken into. The contract was fairly made and the people of Denver should observe it. We protest against Denver reaping the advantages of the encampment and footing the bills too. It is hoggish. Let an extra session of the legislature be called to settle this.

It is well known that the Southern Pacific is striving to get the land grant in New Mexico and Arizona, which was made to the Texas Pacific but was not built west of Texas. The protest against their getting it is universal. The Santa Fe New Mexican protests against it in the following very forcible way: "The "claim of the Southern Pacific railroad company to the original land grant of the Texas "Pacific railroad, in the territories of New "Mexico and Arizona, is creating considerable "excitement and indignation, and justly so. "It is a deliberate attempt on the part of the "latter company to obtain property to "which they certainly have no moral right, "and if they can sustain a legal right it will "be by some technical legal point. But the "strenuous efforts which the company have "lately been making to induce the interior "department to confirm the claim, is an indication that they do not think themselves "that they have any right to the vast tract of "land which they are endeavoring to steal "from the public domain. The only ground for the claim is that the Texas Pacific old to the Southern Pacific all interest in this land grant, amounting to some 1,800,000 acres. But this land grant cannot be transferred in this way legally and is against the spirit of the law under which the land grant was made. It was to making another independent competing line to the Pacific. But this purpose was defeated. The capitalists that built the Southern Pacific also built the Central Pacific. They own and control the Pacific coast terminal of the Union Pacific, Atlantic Pacific and Texas Pacific by. There is no question about the illegality of any such transfer of the [illegible]

This opinion is strengthened by a clause in the order which directs him to return to his post in arrest and await the promulgation of the proceedings of his court-martial.

The Shah's Pilgrimage.

London News

[illegible] Bath has left for Meshad. The number of [illegible] accompanies his image is 18 000 [illegible] 000. Of these there are about [illegible] 2000 foot, and a small body of [illegible] of two battalions. The [illegible] 4 000 or 5 000 are composed of court attendants their servants and other followers. With the exception of a select body of horse and another of foot forming the royal guard, all the other troops will travel by the ordinary route and the shah and his suite by the mountain road, which passes through the following places: Darjarud, the shah's favorite summer resort, where he will stay three or four days, Firuzkuh Chasmuch Ab, Chahrud, Jajarm Bujourd, Kabustian, and Mashhad. The route, although longer and more difficult is cooler than the ordinary one. The distance between Mashhad and Teheran is about 150 farsakhs, or 590 miles. As no caravansaries or inns are to be found on this road all the persons forming the royal suite have according to their rank or need been provided with tents and other necessary articles. Thus the number of beasts of burden exceeds that of men. Large supplies of provisions have also been stored at different stages along the road. The apparent object of the journey is, as it has been given out a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Imam Riza at Mashhad. But considering that for a tour in his own country there was no need of so many troops or such a number of other persons, people are led to believe that the shah has some political object in view.

The Russians, having by the capture of Geok Teke rendered themselves masters of the vast territory of the Tekke Turcomans, have since been at work to consolidate their hold on that country and at the same time prepare the way for the conquest of Merv. For this object they have completed the railway from the Caspian Sea to Kizil Arvat, and thence to Ashkabad a carriage road is made and kept in good working order. But there ends their advance. The country lying between the latter place and Merv is a sandy desert destitute of water, and the only safe and practical route for a march on Merv lies through the Persian province of Khorassan. So the acquisition of a part of that province, or at least of a narrow slip of it, forms for the present the chief object of Russian desire. The accomplishment of this desire is facilitated by the fact that after the capture of Geok Teke many Turcoman chiefs, with large bodies of followers crossed into Persia and settled on and in the vicinity of the frontier. These Turcomans, allured by the exemption from taxes and other advantages offered by Russia, and gained over by their relatives and friends in their native country, have for some time been tendering their allegiance to her. Moreover, the scanty Persian population of those parts, unable to make head against these roving Turcomans retire, whenever they can do so without much loss, to the interior of the country. The Turcomans then move their tents further on to occupy the abandoned ground, and whenever the Turcomans stretch their tents Russia does not scruple to claim sovereignty over them and over the ground occupied by them. This kind of slow conquest, although without hard won battles and brilliant successes, is not the least advantageous and certain in its results.

Unhappily for Persia the frontier is not clearly defined, and no precise demarkation line exists in those parts of her dominions. From the foregoing facts it is inferred that the main purpose of the shah's journey is, by a display of great pomp and military force to encourage his Persian subjects to stick to their ancient abodes and not give way to the advancing Turcomans, and at the same time to try and find out how he can without much loss arrange definitely with his mighty neighbor before the complications reach the extreme point.

The Status of the Performer

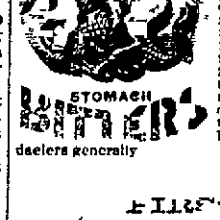
Edinburg Review

For the players who choose for their life's calling that ministry of diversion, society in this country always has a light esteem. Above all, for the human person to become the professional vehicle of public amusement, and let for hire its features and gestures, its stage display, entails a secret offense to the inbred morgue of society, which discredits the histrionic calling, however unjustly. Nor is this sentiment peculiar to England. On the contrary, the class of dramatic performers has long been held in greater respect in this country than on the continent. The Kembles the Macreadys, the Ellen Trees, the Helen Faucits have ennobled it. The prejudice against the profession of the stage is far stronger in France and Italy than with us. Roman law marked actors with a touch of infamy, the Roman church denied them so much as a consecrated grave. Even in Paris, not strict or prudish in such things, something of the old disdain survives, and it was a marvel when the most accomplished comedian of the day received from the president of the republic the decoration of the Legion of Honor. Still, it must be confessed that there is a close analogy between the temptations of the turf and those of the stage. The former lead the jockey to scale as light in truth and in honesty as he seeks to do in avoirdupois, reserving sometimes, but not invariably, the duty of his engagement to the colors for which he rides. The latter incline the actor, and still more the actress, to make life a masquerade of flash and glare, a whirligig of sudden triumph and precipitate reverse. For both alike, that most brittle and least moral of all tests, success before the public eye, tends to become a gradually larger and larger factor, and character and conscience sink under the influence of professional habit. There are temptations, not, of course, irresistible but great and real which beset the profession of those who live to please, and these have so far prevailed in modern the traditions of the stage, in the past that they tend to exclude any close scrutiny of moral character in the members of a company. Unless he rises above those traditions, no manager will care to press such a question. It is as much our [illegible] Forster who merely wanted his men to be [illegible]. It is impossible that no traditional facts should result in such a [illegible] of esteem, social discrating founded upon a moral sentiment, similar to that of Oriental castes, which rests on a core of moral or socially artificial. The male performer is comparatively a pachyderm, being proof against imputations which sting the female reputation to death. Taxes on the head of the wife of the bondsman, which, if due at all, should be divided between the public who demand and the male performer who assists, the actress sacrifice, to whatever it may amount of social respect. Thus the stage is entitled to say to society, "You cannot do without us and hold us cheap for doing it. You are bound then to protect the weaker members of our craft against the terrible risks which they often run for your sake. Your duty does not end with payment at the doors or applause however judicious, in the house. Your pride and self love inflict a social disability and such disparagement ever tends to depress the moral status of those who incur it. The imputation which you free, fling on us ever tends to realize itself in actual profligacy. A profession which stands at a disadvantage in the eyes of public opinion however unjustly, is only too likely to deserve that of which it is suspected for the sense of hopeless injustice is apt to sting its more sensitive and impulsive members into desperation. Therefore as you [illegible] ment, remember [illegible] and reciprocity to guard the opening and help it from becoming, by a natural and gregarious law a downward slope to perdition." We do not see how it is possible to set aside this claim. The Church and State [illegible] is an attempt to recognize and meet it. It is only possible to overcome evil by good, and, omitting from our present view any specially religious agencies which that good may exist, so far as it embodies that broad moral principle we can not but wish it well. For the amusers and the amused to have opportunities of meeting, knowing and befriending one another will minimize the chances of any of the former dropping into the gulf, while the latter will perhaps be not wished at the amount of self respect or inspirited in the face of social discouragement, which the ranks of the former have to show.

Telegraphy and Mesmerism

Washington Republican

Forty eight years ago Mr Joel B Sutherland, a member of congress from Pennsylvania introduced in the house of representatives a resolution requesting the secretary of the treasury to report to the house the practicability of establishing a system of telegraph for the United States. The secretary addressed a circular letter of inquiry to many scientific and practical gentlemen in different portions of the country inviting their attention to the resolution of congress. The results of this inquiry brought forth many useful and practical suggestions, and urged the necessity of a system of telegraph for public and private purposes. The idea of using electricity as a means of communication between parties many miles apart seemed ridiculous even to many learned statesmen at that time, and it was then characterized as a twin brother to mesmerism and millerism. In the house, when an appropriation of $30,000 was asked to enable Prof Morse to continue his experiment with the magnetic telegraph it was moved to divide the amount between Prof Morse and a Mr Fish, to enable the latter who was an expert in mesmerism to carry on his experiments in the mesmeric art. When it came to the attention of the Hon Thomas H Benton, in the United States senate he said "I rejoice at the invention of the magnetic telegraph, and look forward to the time when it will be of great value to the business interests and commerce of the country, and do not doubt that the time will come when electricity will be extensively applied in the arts and commerce of the world."



Hostetter's Stomach Bitters by increasing the nervous power and regulating the physical functions regular and active keeps the system in good working order and protects it against disease. For constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaint nervousness, kidney and rheumatic ailments it is invaluable and it affords a sure defence against malarial fever. Charlecote

Blackwood's Magazine

At Charlecote, the church—the interior is well worth visiting, for the carved oak stalls, and the monuments in the Lucy chapel, especially the figure of the historical Sir Thomas—though in the immediate neighborhood of the hall, is beyond the grounds, and across the river But when you are face to face with the lodge and the high iron gates on the Stratford road, you see that there is no need to ring or beg for admission Hard by, in the oaken palings, is a little "wicket gate," whence a path leads across the park along a gentle slope, slightly diverging from the lady carriage approach, and skirting what in the north would be called the home policies Charlecote is a genuine low country park, not of no very great extent But it is fortunate in gentle undulations of the ground, and it has the charms of wood and water in perfection When we visited it last the superb trees with their spreading branches throwing vast circular shadows over the sunny grass, were in every shade of the freshest vernal green There was the soft green of the limes, the deeper green of the elms, and the bright yellow tinted green of the bursting oaks, a week or two at least behind the others Inconsistent as it may sound to say so, there was an enchanting confusion of absolute repose and the most intense vitality The air was drowsy and warm, there was scarcely breeze enough stirring to shake an aspen leaf, the herds of deer were languidly ruminating under the trees or listlessly brushing away the flies that began to bother them By the way it was not from this park of Charlecote that Shakespeare stole the deer, but from the Lucys' seat of Fullbrook which has long since been demolished and dispirked And in friendly fellowship with the fallow deer the colonies of rabbits—black, white, and gray—had stolen silently out to feed from their burrows in the banks beneath the gnarled roots of the mighty stems They heard the footfall of the wayfarer with entire indifference, scarcely troubling themselves to go to ground even when we passed within pistol shot. But, on the other hand, there were small glancing shadows in all directions in swiftest motion The jackdaws that swarmed in the holes in the hollow trunks of patriarchal elms seemed to have found out the secret of perpetual motion, the starlings, if less noisy were at least as restless, while swallows were circling everywhere overhead, skimming through the blades of the grass, and sweeping round again toward the Avon The river flowing close past the house bounds the park to the westward For the builders of old English castles and manor-houses always ran like rats to the water, and we know many of them which have probably been established to all eternity on the least eligible site of their beautiful domains

Why People take Medicine

British Quarterly Review

It is to be feared that to most people medicine is not an erudite science or a learned art, but is little more than the commonplace administration of physic They cannot understand medicine without drugs, and its virtue and power are popularly measured by the violence of its operations Its very name is in ordinary parlance synonymous with physic. Take from it its pills and potions, and for them you take away its whole art and mystery They do not believe in a scheme of treatment, however deep laid and skillful, which does not include a certain statutory dosage So that, as a rule, medical men are practically compelled to give their patients a visible object of faith in some form of physic, which may be at most designed to effect some very subordinate purpose. And it is remarkable how strongly even among the educated classes this feeling prevails Cure by the administration of mixtures and boluses is so fixed and ancient a tradition that it is only very slowly that the world will give it up. The anxiety of the friends of the patient wants to do more than follow the simple directions of "nursing," which have been so carefully inculcated and possess apparently so little remedial power There is nothing of the unknown about them in which a fluttering hope of great advantage can nestle Thus it is necessary to educate the world into a belief in medicine apart from drugs, which finds its power of curing in adaptations of the common conditions of life and applications of physiological facts—a medicine which takes into its hands the whole life, and orders and fashions its every detail with scientific definiteness It is found in every-day practice that this popular misunderstanding of the modern spirit of medicine constantly checks the little tentative advances of a more scientific treatment, and it is necessary that it should be generally understood how powerfully the various processes of the economy may be affected by the manipulation of the conditions of common life

Ancient Old Testament Manuscript

New York Sun

A Mr Shapira of Jerusalem, a bookseller and dealer in antiquities, has just deposited in the British museum slips of black sheep skin leather, on which are written, in characters similar to those on the celebrated Moabite stone, portions of the Book of Deuteronomy differing materially from the received version Dating as to the slips is the ninth century before Christ or sixteen centuries older than any authentic manuscript of any part of the Old Testament Mr Shapira bought them from an Arab, and he asks for them $5 000,000 from the British museum It is thus the interest and importance of the discovery cannot be overrated and, so far as variations in the sacred text are concerned, there is promise of one of the greatest controversies that scholars have ever entered upon The decalogue furnishes a good example for comparison with the received version I quote from the Shapira record

I am God thy God, which liberated thee from the land of Egypt from the house of bondage Ye shall have no other gods Ye shall not make to yourselves any graven image nor any likeness that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath or that is in the waters under the earth Ye shall not bow down to them nor serve them

I am God, your God, sanctify In six days I have made the heaven and the earth and all that there is therein, and rested on the seventh day Therefore rest thou also, thou and thy cattle and all that thou hast.

I am God, thy God Honor thy father and thy mother

I am God, thy God Thou shalt not kill the person of thy brother

I am God, thy God Thou shalt not commit adultery with the wife of thy neighbor

I am God, thy God Thou shalt not steal the property of thy brother

I am God, thy God Thou shalt not swear by my name falsely, for I visit the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of those who take my name in vain

I am God, thy God Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy brother

I am God, thy God Thou shalt not covet his wife, or his man servant, or his maid servant, or anything that is his

I am God thy God Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart

I am God, thy God These ten words God spake

Dr Ginsburg, the eminent Semitic scholar, to whom Mr Gladstone has just given £50 toward the production of his work on the Masorah, has deciphered the above, and is busy completing a translation and determining on behalf of the museum the genuineness of the fragments

Literary Fame

Harper's Magazine for August

Bayard Taylor never fully reconciled himself to the vocation of a prose writer He believed that the world should have demanded nothing of him but poetry Concerning this he used to tell a good story at his own expense During his last lecturing trip through the western states he was the guest, in a small city, of the chairman of the lecture committee, a self satisfied and prosperous citizen, who met Taylor at the train and carried him home to his own smartly furnished house When waiting for the evening repast the well fed chairman said, with manifest pride, that probably Mr. Taylor did not remember him No, Mr Taylor did not "Why," said the chairman, "you were here in this town ten years ago this very winter, this very month, and stopped with me, as you are stopping now" Mr Taylor professed his interest in the important fact. The chairman, glancing around on the chromos the new carpets and the glittering white walls of his home said "Yes you see I have been prospering since then Yes the world has been a pretty good place for me It has for you, too Mr Taylor I have watched your course ever since I got acquainted with you, ten years ago, and I suppose I am one of the few people who have read everything you ever wrote" 'What' said Taylor, "everything" "Yes, sir, everything I could lay my hands on" "Then," said Taylor, 'perhaps you will tell me what you think of my new poem, 'Lars'" 'Gosh'" said the man "do you write poetry"

Roger de Beauvoir

Temple Bar

I had a slight acquaintance with Roger de Beauvoir, the clever author of the "Chevalier de St. Georges," he must have been strikingly handsome in his youth, but when I knew him he looked pale and careworn, his right to the name of Beauvoir was subsequently contested, and after a long and tedious lawsuit he was compelled to abandon it He married Mlle Doze, one of the most agreeable actresses of Theatre Francaise, endowed with a complexion so exquisitely fair that when about to appear for the first time on the stage, she absolutely refused to have recourse to the rouge pot, and declared her intention of leaving her face as nature made it. Being persuaded, however, to try the effect on the spectators of the dress rehearsal, the result was so appalling—for, exposed to the full glare of the footlights, she resembled a lemon—that she submitted to the inevitable, and, her cheek daily adorned with the regulation artificial bloom, was unanimously voted by the critics a "rosebud"

Don't fail to hear Kate Field in her musical folly entitled "Eyes and Ears in London" at the opera house to-night.

Miss Nellie Thompson, of St. Louis, arrived in Colorado Springs the early part of the week and has rooms at 211 Cascade avenue.

There will be a regular monthly meeting of the Matt France Hose company this evening at 8 o'clock in their room in the city hall building.

Manager Nye went to Denver yesterday afternoon on official business. He may conclude to make a tour of the state with Miss Kate Field.

Mr. Swan will begin work on the artesian well this morning. The location has not been fully decided upon, but it will probably be in Acacia park.

Mr. E. A. Ford, general passenger and ticket agent of the Pennsylvania Central road, went north on yesterday afternoon's Denver & Rio Grande train.

Mr. F. E. Rose has been made happy over the arrival in his family of a young daughter weighing ten pounds. Both mother and daughter are doing well.

Mr. Louis A. Morgenstern, Janauschek's business representative, was in the city yesterday preparing for the appearance of the company here on the 18th inst.

The annual convention of the W. C. T. U. of Colorado is now in session at Denver. The delegates present from here are Mrs. Shields, Miss Mary Hooker, Miss Fannie Rowe, Mrs. H. M. Chambers and Mrs. A. W. Gilmore.

The entertainment to be given by Miss Kate Field at the opera house to-night promises to be exceedingly novel and entertaining. She will give a two hours' talk on London and its people, interspersed with songs of a very interesting nature.

Yesterday afternoon Marshal Beall shot a horse which he found lying in the Monument bottom with its leg broken. The animal belonged to one of the rag pickers living near the gas works, who claims the horse's leg was broken by the Manitou train. The train employes, however, deny that they ever struck the animal.

Mme. Janauschek and her excellent company will appear at the opera house here on Saturday evening, August 18th, and present her latest great success, "Zillah, or the Hebrew mother." Mme. Janauschek has just returned from a very successful tour of the Pacific slope, having gone as far north as Seattle and Victoria.

Judge Bentley went to Manitou yesterday and appeared as counsel for the defendant in the case of the town against J. R. Gondolfe, accused of selling goods without license. The latter is a fruit vender and but recently opened a stand on Manitou avenue. The case came up before Justice Cross but was continued for one week.

Either to-day or to-morrow Rev. A. R. Kieffer, the new rector of Grace Episcopal church, will arrive in Colorado Springs from Warren, Ohio, with his family. He will occupy the pulpit of Grace church as its rector for the first time on Sunday morning. On Wednesday evening the 15th he will be given a reception at the association rooms on Weber street.

St. Bernard commandery of Chicago, numbering 175 or 200 persons, is expected to arrive in Colorado Springs on either Monday or Tuesday. Accommodations have been telegraphed for at the Antlers. A drill will be given by this commandery during their sojourn here which will be well worth seeing, as this is looked upon as being one of the best drilled commanderies in the United States.

Our physicians all scan carefully any new M. D. signs. One of our physicians was startled night before last by a new sign on Pike's Peak avenue which in the evening read "Kate Field, "Dr. Eye Making." Happily, before alarming his professional friends, he had a night's rest, and taking a second look in the morning before communicating the sad fact, his perturbed spirit was calmed by reading "Dr. Eye Making."

A meeting will be held Sunday evening next at the Congregational church under the auspices of the Woman's Board of Missions. An address will be given by Mrs. Moses Smith, of Detroit, on "Tributary Forces." The address as given in other places has awakened much interest as one of unusual eloquence and effectiveness. The contribution for the American board announced for next Sabbath will be deferred one week to Sunday the 19th. Rev. Moses Smith will preach at the Congregational church next Sunday morning.

Mr. J. H. Drinkwater was in the city for a few hours yesterday. He has just come up from Colorado, Texas, and left again yesterday afternoon on a visit to his family in Chicago. Mr. Drinkwater has given up business at Colorado, and is talking of locating at Indianola, Nebraska. He reports that Dr. Davis, who went from Colorado Springs to Colorado, Texas, is tiring of that section of the country and contemplates shortly returning to this state. It seems strange that nearly all who leave Colorado after having resided here any length of time naturally drift back.

TO INVALIDS AND TOURISTS!

THE

Seven Lakes Hotel

IS NOW OPEN

It is the highest Hotel of the kind in the world and in the highest forest.

The principal lake is 80 feet deep and one mile in diameter; is the highest in the world, 11,432 feet above the level of the sea. [Report of the U. S. Signal Service.

It has the highest sail boats in the world.

"The road via Cheyenne Canon and Beaver Park to Pike's Peak, about 13,000 feet, is the highest carriage road in the world, and the volcanic crater, within which are the Hotel and Lakes, is the highest and largest in the world. It does not militate against the latter that it has but one opening."—[Chancellor of the Kansas State University.

Professor Spring says: "The scenery is extraordinary; sublime beyond description."

Said the pyrotechnist who made the fire works for the great Masonic celebration in Chicago: "I never felt so near the Great White Throne as when beholding these stupendous remains of God Almighty's fire works."

Rev. H. C. Crane says: "Along the Cheyenne road, and at the Lakes, the views are glorious. By the old lake-bed, over 13,000 feet in the air, I found many precious crystals. I have never felt so happy since my marriage day."

Mrs. Mrs. Crane: "All this, and heaven too."

Bierstadt, the Rocky Mountain artist: "I never grow weary of looking at it. It changes every hour. Cheyenne mountain, over the crest of which runs the road to the Lakes and Pike's Peak, is the only mountain in the world which rises without a base. From the prairies it boldly springs up 4,000 feet."

Various journals, notably the Atlantic Monthly, and "H. H.," speak kindly of the House, Lakes and road.

"O, for some kind friend to kick me up another hill," said Mark Twain before the road was made.

The water and highly developed air, ozone (oxygenized oxygen) cure many diseases. Exhaustion, nervousness and every symptom of paralysis disappear. So with many lung and heart troubles.

The Hotel is four miles from Pike's Peak (official survey); carriage way three miles. Everything in Hostelry, Guides, Couriers, Horses, Burros, Tents, Lunches, etc., furnished at reasonable rates. Goat's or cow's milk for invalids. Stage twice a week. Address or call on
